"SPENDING OF DAYS"

Vol. 2 - 1876 & 1881

Permelia Feller

Introduction

As you open Permelia (Feller) Wheeler's (my-in-the-original 1876 diary and begin to browse, definite changes in Permelia's life are quickly evident. It is now ten years since her first diary. She was then 28/29, she is now 38/39 and married.

Selections and commentary have already been published for the 1886 diary. The introduction for the first diary said that, as far as could be ascertained, Permelia was still single in 1876. She was still 30 in 1881. The only reference at the time was in the Commemorative Bibliography Report of Dutchess County (1897, p.820). Her husband, it said, had been Samuel Wheeler. In the 1876 diary Permelia writes often (though briefly) of "Sam" and "Samuel".

I have used a different approach to the 1876 diary. It is hoped that you have found the one in 1886 since it will help you so much to understand the 1876 diary. The 1876 diary is printed in full with all its punctuation-free impediments and misspellings. The only concession to greater intelligibility will be the insertion of slashes between what appear, in my opinion, to be disconnected statements. There will be an occasional insertion and a note or two here and there. Commentary will be minimal. Needed background appears in the 1886 volume, "Permelia Feller's Spelling of Days". Reading on, you will see how much Permelia Wheeler's life had already changed and continued to change during 1876.

There is still one major unanswered question. Where were the Wheelers living? Their home, as deduced from the text, appeared to be an inn.

Here is Permelia Wheeler's life in 1876 and 1881 (which starts on page 39).

Introduction

As you open Permelia (Feller) Wheeler's tiny-in-the-original 1876 diary and begin to browse, definite changes in Permelia's life are quickly evident. It is now ten years since her first diary. She was then 28/29; she is now 38/39 and married.

Selections and commentary have already been published for the 1866 diary. The Introduction for the first diary said that, as far as could be determined, Permelia had been married between the compilation of the 1875 state census and January 1, 1876. She was still 38. (Her birth date was August 5, 1837.) The only reference at all to marriage came from the Commemorative Biographical Record of Dutchess County (1897, p.920). Her husband, it said, had been Samuel Wheeler. In the 1876 diary Permelia writes often (though briefly) of "Sam" and "Samuel".

I have used a different approach to the 1876 diary. (It is hoped that you have read the one for 1866 since it will help you so much to understand this one.) The text will now be reproduced in full with all its punctuation-free imperfections and misspellings. The only concession to greater intelligibility will be the insertion of slashes between what appear, in my opinion, to be disconnected statements. There will be an occasional insertion and a note or two here and there. Commentary will be minimal. Needed background appears in the 1866 volume, "Permelia Feller's Spending of Days". Reading on, you will see how much Permelia Wheeler's life had already changed and continued to change during 1876.

There is still one major unanswered question. Where were the Wheelers living? Their home, as deduced from the text, appeared to be an inn.
